You work as an IT professional in an international company which is named Contoso. Your major job is to translate business goals into technology decisions and plan mid-range to long-term strategies. And you are experienced in network infrastructure, security policy and business continuity. In your company, you are responsible for infrastructure design and global configuration changes.
There is one Active Directory forest in your network. One root domain and two child domains are contained in this forest.
Windows Server 2008 is run by all domain controllers.
The DNS Server service is run by all domain controllers that host Active Directory-integrated zones.
You design a name resolution solution to support single-label names.
You have to prepare the environment to support single-label name resolution across the entire forest.
What action should you perform?
A. A resource records should be configured in the parent domain.
B. Stub zones in each child domain should be deployed.
C. A GlobalNames zone should be deployed.
D. Conditional forwarders should be configured in each child domain.
Answer: C
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference: To help network administrators migrate to DNS for all name resolution, the DNS Server role in Windows Server 2008 supports a specially named zone, called GlobalNames. By deploying a zone with this name, you can have the static, global records with single-label names, without relying on WINS. These single-label names typically refer to records for important, well-known and widely-used servers-servers that are already assigned static IP addresses and that are currently managed by IT-administrators using WINS.
