Explanation:

When a file is modified or created, the file system sets the archive bit to 1. A differential backup process backs up the files that have been modified since the last full backup, but does not change the archive bit value.

Incorrect Answers:

B: A differential backup process does not change the archive bit value.

C: Because a differential backup process backs up the files that have been modified since the last full backup, the archive bit at the start of the process would be set to 1.

D: Because a differential backup process backs up the files that have been modified since the last full backup, the archive bit at the start of the process would be set to 1.
