NEW QUESTION: 1

You are using the `svc:/network/http:apache22` service to manage your web server.

You have noticed that this service starts as the `root:` user and later changes to a nonprivileged user called `webservd`. You do not want this service to operate as the `root` user and any time. Which option correctly describes how you could achieve this task?

- A. Modify the privileges in the service configuration.
- B. Modify the `PHIV_AWARE` state of the service configuration.
- C. Add an authorization to the `webservd` users' rights' profile.
- D. Create a `webservd` role with a modified `exec_attr` entry.

Answer: A

Explanation:

A service can be configured to run within a limited set of privileges, rather than as the all-powerful `root` user.

NEW QUESTION: 4

Which statement best describes cloud bursting in the context of hybrid clouds?

- A. Moving resources from a public to a private cloud.
- B. Removing cloud resources from a hybrid cloud.
- C. Extending cloud resource use across hybrid clouds on demand
- D. Moving cloud resources from a private to a public cloud.

Answer: D

Explanation:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cloud\_computing

Another example of hybrid cloud is one where IT organizations use public cloud computing resources to meet temporary capacity needs that can not be met by the private cloud.[71]This capability enables hybrid clouds to employ cloud bursting for scaling across clouds.[3]Cloud bursting is an application deployment model in which an application runs in a private cloud or data center and "bursts" to a public cloud when the demand for computing capacity increases. A primary advantage of cloud bursting and a hybrid cloud model is that an organization only pays for extra compute resources when they are needed.[72]Cloud bursting enables data centers to create an in-house IT infrastructure that supports average workloads, and use cloud resources from public or private clouds, during spikes in processing demands.[73]
